PYÆMIA

Is the most virulent form of blood-poisoning. Less speedily fatal but not less certain are its the Vitiation of the blood of which the first symptoms are Pimples, Sores, Boils, and Cutaneous Eruptions. When the taint of Scrofula gives warning of its presence by such indications, no time should be lost in using AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, the only perfect and reliable medicine for the purification of the blood.

SCROFULA

Is a foul corruption in the blood that rots out all the machinery of life. Nothing will eradicate it from the system and prevent its transmission to offspring but AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. This preparation is also the only one that will cleanse the blood of Mercurial poison and the taint of Contagious Diseases. Impoverished blood is productive of

ANÆMIA,

A wretched condition indicated by Pallid Skin, Flaccid Muscles, Shattered Nerves, and Melancholy. Its first symptoms are Weakness, Languor, Loss of Nerve Force, and Mental Dejection. Its course, unchecked, leads inevitably to insanity or death. Women frequently suffer from it. The only medicine that, while purifying the blood, enriches it with new vitality, and invigorates the whole system, is

AFTER DOLLARS.

Sharpers who Fleece the Innocent and Gull the Guilty.

"The slickest piece of work in the way of a fraud conducted through the mails that has come to my attention recently," remarked Chief-Inspector Sharp of the Post-office Department, "is what we call the bogus-medicine dodge. The ingenious author of this scheme now languishes in jail, but at the same time he showed himself to be a man of no mean order of ability. His plan was to send out circulars announcing a great cure for catarrh, which was discovered by himself after many years of study and investigation. He then proceeds to give, without cost, the preparation for this wonderful medicine, and enumerates twelve ingredients which enter into its composition. At the end of the circular is a note which states that if the druggist does not happen to have all these ingredients the prescription will be filled and forwarded upon the receipt of three dollars. The person receiving the circular and desirous of trying the remedy takes the prescription to the drug store, but is told by the druggist that he has three ingredients, but not the other nine. He looks through his book, but fails to find even their names, and so, of course, is unable to furnish the required medicine. The discoverer of the remedy is applied to, and if the three dollars has been furnished a bottle of some mixture is sent on, which, of course, is entirely worthless.

"That is one phase of the case," continued the inspector. "Now the man prepares and causes to be published in some paper in New York City an article about the prominent doctors in New York City, with a portrait of each and a sketch giving some account of the life and services of each. All the men mentioned are bona fide doctors, the leading men in the profession, with the exception of a man whose name is, say, Dr. Hart. He is unknown, but the sketch states that he left a practice of $25,000 per year to devote himself to the practice of his specialty—catarrh. The bogus medicine man then procures a large number of copies of this paper, and, marking the picture of Dr. Hart and the sketch, sends copies, together with the circular, broadcast throughout the country. In consequence he receives an immense mail, and large numbers of money orders and registered letters. After the Postmaster-General had directed that no more money orders and registered letters should be delivered to Dr. Hart, $3,000 accumulated in the Brooklyn post-office that had been sent to him. When an attempt was made to find Dr. Hart, of course no such a man could be discovered; but a sign over a door at the advertised number was found, and that was all. A Dr. Lawrence occupied the same rooms, and to him the mail was delivered, and when he was told the letters could not be given to him, as he was not Dr. Hart, he went off and got a power of attorney by which Dr. Hart authorized him to receive the mail. About this time, however, the officers came in and relieved him of further annoyance about his mail matter. This same man was managing some other scheme under the name of Lawrence, while his real name was Connolly. He must have made a great deal of money, as one of the witnesses in the trial testified that he had been offered $2,000 to personate Dr. Hart."

"It is a singular thing," observed the Colonel, "how these offers to give something for nothing take with the people, and how rogues fatten upon the credulity of the public. There is another species of fraud, which one would naturally suppose had been given such wide publicity that no one would now be deceived by it. I mean the counterfeit-money dodge, where men propose to forward a large amount of counterfeit money by express or mail on the receipt of a small amount of genuine money to pay for the manufacture. Usually all that the victim receives in return is a box filled with sawdust. But a recent operator has devised a new plan. He locates near a small town in a country district and then sends out his letters. He does not offer to forward the counterfeit money, but invites persons to visit him and inspect his stock and buy what they wish. When the visitor arrives the operator has a large quantity of good bills, which he shows him and allows him to examine. In order, however, to avoid outside interference, the visitor is taken off in the woods, where the business proceeds. The operator produces his money and the visitor examines it and determines how much he will take and what price is to be paid. Just as they are about to close the transaction suddenly two men emerge from the bushes, announce themselves as detectives, and proceed to place them under arrest. The detectives do not fail to take all the money from both the men. As they are about to march them off to the town, the operator obtains permission to speak privately with the victim. He asks him how much more money he has than what he was going to use in the transaction, and if he has more, he advises that they had better try and buy off the detectives, for if they don't they will both land in the penitentiary. The victim is ready to pay anything to get out of the grasp of the supposed representatives of the law, and eagerly agrees to contribute to a fund to pay the detectives. The latter, of course, accept the bribe, and, pocketing all the money, disappear. The victim gets away as fast as possible, and goes home and never says a word about his loss. He is too much ashamed."—Washington Star.

—From a research into some old documents it is learned that before the revolution the professors at Harvard College were paid in farm produce, which, indeed, was the only way the students could meet tuition bills. In Virginia the clergy were paid in tobacco. In 1775 Congress issued $200,000 paper currency, and eventually $50,000,000 of war money was put in circulation—all of which sank to almost nothing, though years afterwards it was redeemed. A barber shop in Philadelphia was ornamented with Continental money pasted over the walls.—Boston Journal.

THE FAIRY'S DREAM

—OF—

CHEAP CHARLEY.

THERE'S a legend in the city
And the country, often told
How the ravages of Time
Caused the clothing to grow old.

Then the fairies set to thinking
How the clothing they could mend,
Or find some Merchant Tailor
On whom they could depend.

There was Pat from Emerald Island,
But his stitches wouldn't hold;
Then came the smooth faced Yankee,
Who to cheat made awful bold.

The man from Chinee he no likee,
And his seamee muchee bad;
And blitchee come to pieces,
Make manee muchee mad.

Then the fairies waved their wand
On the German Fatherland,
And brought forth a benefactor
Known as Charles, the Woollen Factor.

They bade him cross the ocean,
On free soil his trade to ply,
And he's known from Maine to Utah
As the man who cannot lie.

CHEAP CHARLEY is his cognomen
A name that's pleasing to the ears,
And when he sees a man in tatters
His honest heart dissolves in tears.

Fine Suits he sells at lowest figures;
Hats and Caps, with Ties to match.
You'll find profit, gentle stranger,
If you lift his welcome latch.

Cheap Charley's stock is always largest
And best selected in the town;
It makes the other dealers scary,
Causing many an angry frown.

But he likes to please the people,
And for rivals little cares;
Competition makes him happy,
While he sells a suit that wears.

Go and look his stock all over,
Note its make, and fit and style;
Compared with others you have notic'd
It will surely make you smile.

On the corner of Old Square and Main street,
You the nicest store will see
Where you are treated with politeness
By Cheap Charley and all his employes.

Write your girl about our harness—
How it fits you like a glove;
And she'll answer: Oh, come quickly
Dearest Charley, sweetest love!

Oh, that name of magic sweetness,
Chawls, some call it who are Wylde,
While the sun flowers nod in silence
And the zephyrs whisper mild.

But Cheap Charley is the hero
Of more suits than those of men;
He tries them on the lawyer
Without judge or jurymen.

The judge wears his ermine,
And the witnesses the coats;
The jury scan the fabrics
While they cast the clearing votes.

Talk about your clothing stores
Cheap Charley can't be beat;
He'll cover up your nakedness!
And make you look so sweet.

The cops will never stop you,
Or show undue surprise;
They'll pass you by as gentlemen
And shut their wondering eyes.

Then go to Charley's if you'd thrive,
And win the world's esteem;
An ill-clad man is out of luck,
And always looks so mean

That people shun him on the street,
And pass him by unknown,
While mentally they calculate
He is an awkward clown.

Then write your girl a letter,
And tell her you have found
Cheap Charley has a wedding suit
Throughout the world renowned.

To name the day, the time and place
Those clothes shall first appear;
While Cheap Charley's name shall always be,
A household word most dear.

FRIDAY EVE., NOV. 27, 1885.

Vice-President Hendricks.

The sudden death of Vice President Hendricks, which occurred at his home in Indianapolis at 4:45 p. m. on Wednesday, has produced a most profound sensation throughout the country. The health of the Vice President had not been the best for some few years past, but recent reports have represented him as being in an improved condition, and his friends fondly hoped that his life would be spared for many years. It seems, however, that he himself had premonitions of his approaching dissolution, and in various ways had indicated his belief that death would come soon, and in some such sudden way as that which it really did assume on Wednesday.

Mr. Hendricks has occupied a large share of public attention for a long time, having been in public life almost continuously for the last forty years. Possessing a most winning disposition, an orator of the most persuasive character, and a partisan of the straightest kind, it is not strange that he should have enjoyed a rare degree of popularity among those who belonged to his school of politics. History will hardly accord to him a place among the first statesmen of his time, for his name is not connected with any great measure that crystalized into law under his efforts or by reason of his advocacy, but it will award to him the credit of great purity of personal and official character, and a reputation as one of the first among the partisan leaders of his time. A Bourbon of the most pronounced type (as we understand the term), it is not strange that his magnetic eloquence should have made him the idol of his class, or that his amiability should have atoned so fully for his lack of some other qualities that would have added so much to the lasting character of his fame, and it is a source of regret that his talents in the direction of leadership should not have been directed in a channel that would better stand the impartial judgment of history. No public man can leave a lasting impression upon history whose greatest efforts are made in opposing something, and that was the role played by Mr. Hendricks during the greater part of his career. He must identify himself with some great measure and fight to carry it through, rather than content himself with the negative occupation of uttering "I object," to everything that is proposed. Mr. Hendricks chose to put himself in the attitude of a clog upon the wheel of events, but the wheel went on all the same, and his efforts to stop it resulted in an inglorious failure. He opposed everything that succeeded, and everything that he advocated failed. He was on the wrong side, though that he was honest in his sentiments cannot be doubted, and it will ever remain a source of profound regret that he did not supplement and round out his career by throwing the weight of his ability and the influence of a blameless life in favor of the great reforms which mark the period of his public service.

New York's Official Canvass.

The complete official returns of the late New York State election, show that the total vote polled for Governor was 1,074,138, of which Hill, Dem., received 501,448; Davenport, Rep., 489,727; Bascom, Prohib., 30,866; Jones, Greenbacker, 2,127. Hill's plurality over Davenport, 11,691.

For Lieutenant Governor the total vote was 13,115 less than for Governor, and the plurality of Jones, Dem., over Carr, Rep., is only 3,162.

The total vote polled in the state at the recent election for Governor was 137,125 less than the total vote cast for President last year. The falling off in the Republican vote was 72,274; in the Democratic vote 61,639, and in the Greenback vote 14,828. The increase in the Prohibition vote was 5 807.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 25.—Vice-President Hendricks died very suddenly and unexpectedly at his residence on North Tennessee street in this city at five o'clock last evening. The demise of our illustrious citizen was so unlooked-for that the city was shocked at its occurrence, and the most of our people were loth to believe it until it was bulletined from the newspaper offices and confirmed by personal visits to the house. The stricken wife was visited by her immediate friends, but such was the shock to her nerves that it was with the greatest difficulty that she could talk upon the subject at all. The city is in mourning, and the great heart of Indiana is bleeding over the remains of her distinguished son.

Mr Hendricks returned from Chicago on Monday suffering from a very severe cold, and complained of pains in his head, and breast, but his condition was not such as to awaken fears for his safety. Dr. Thompson, the family physician, was called, and the patient insisted upon calomel being administered to him. This the physician refused to do, owing to the prostrating effects which the drug always produced upon Mr. Hendricks, but he gave him an emetic, and later in the day an injection. Tuesday night the Vice-President had so much improved that he and Mrs. Hendricks attended a reception at the residence of State Treasurer Cooper. Mr. Hendricks usually wears heavy clothing, but Tuesday night he took this off and donned a dress suit of lighter material. They returned home a little before twelve o'clock. During the entertainment Mr. Hendricks was in personal appearance as well as usual, and none, save a few, to whom he spoke about the matter, supposed that he was suffering pain. He complained to one or two, however, that he was feeling unwell, but did not express any apprehension of fatal consequences.

He slept well during the night and arose yesterday morning apparently refreshed and feeling better. An hour or two later he was taken with a rigor, and, despite the efforts of the attending physician, the force of the chill remained unbroken for quite an hour, and was accompanied with pains in the stomach. Dr. Thompson gave him an emetic and an injection, which brought relief. He arose from his bed, in which he had lain only a few minutes and read the morning papers, talking cheerfully with his wife and an old servant. He was seriously prostrated, but the doctor was not apprehensive of danger, and he engaged in conversation with the patient on several subjects, among which was the Vice-President's expected departure for Washington and the resumption of his duties as President of the Senate. Mr Hendricks, however, appeared to be oppressed by his sickness, and was very solicitous that Mrs. Hendricks should be always near him.

If she left the room for a moment he inquired concerning her and appeared ill at ease until she re-entered the room. When this disposition was developed Mrs. Hendricks continued by his side, and was present during the visit of the physicians. Just before noon he had a relapse, and the physicians were again summoned and administered the usual remedies, beside bleeding the patient, and Mr. Hendricks again expressed himself as being greatly relieved. He remained in his room all the afternoon, occasionally rising from his bed, to which he was compelled to return by the recurrence of the abdominal pains. To all callers who came, and they were numerous, he sent word that he was indisposed, but would be glad to see them to-morrow.

About 4:30 o'clock Mrs. Hendricks, who had been at his bedside all day, went down into the parlor to see a caller who had come to consult with her regarding the affairs of a reformatory institute, of which she was one of the managers, and she remained with him about twenty minutes. Tom, a colored servant, and Harry Morgan, Mr. Hendricks' nephew and a page in Washington, remained with him. The servant went out and Mr. Morgan remained. Mr. Headricks tossed uneasily in his bed and complained of great pain, but suddenly it seemed to cease, and he said to his nephew: "I am free at last; send for Eliza," meaning his wife, and these were his last words, for the young man left the room and not realizing the urgency of the message did not deliver it at once.

Just before five o'clock Mrs. Hendricks came into the room and found that her husband was dead. He died alone. The end of a long and eventful life had come peacefully and quietly. He lay in the bed, outside of the covering, only partially disrobed, with his eyes half closed as if he were in a cheerful sleep. On his face there were no traces of pain or suffering, but a pallor had come over it that indicated only too plainly that he had passed away. It needed no close examination to tell that he was dead, and Mrs. Hendricks screamed and ran down stairs. A servant was dispatched to the residence of Dr. Thompson adjoining, and he came immediately, but by the time he had reached the bedside the limbs of the distinguished dead man were becoming cold and rigid, and to Mrs. Hendricks' pathetic appeal, "Oh, Doctor, can't you do something?" he was obliged to answer, "It is too late."

Mrs Hendricks became almost distracted with grief, and it was an hour or more before she became sufficiently composed to give any information about her husband's last moments. The family servants, two of whom had lived with them for years, ran about the house crying and mourning, and there was the utmost confusion for a time.

When the news was bulletined down town, it was generally discredited, and in a very few minutes a hundred or more of Mr Hendricks' close political and personal friends had hurried to the house. Very soon a great crowd collected around the entrance and on the street, and it was found necessary to refuse admission to any and all comers except the immediate relatives.

Mr. Hendricks died in his private chamber, a large, comfortable room in which he did the most of his work. Near the bedside was a case containing legal and political works, and on his desk were his papers, memoranda and a large number of letters, which had been allowed to accumulate without answering in the last two or three days. His dressing-gown and slippers were at his bedside and near by was a small stand, on which were various medicines and a goblet of water. Portraits, landscapes and bric-a-brac adorned the walls of the room and were in striking contrast with the sad scene within.

CAUSE OF DEATH.

Dr Thompson says that in his opinion Mr. Hendricks died of paralysis of the brain, and there will probably be a post-mortem examination to establish what the disease was. For several years he had not been a robust man was subject to frequent "dead spells," as he called them, during which he would be prostrated sometimes for days at a time. About two years ago he was confined to his room for seven weeks by a dangerous affection of the foot, which at the time it was feared would result in blood poisoning, and it was then thought that the end of his life was near at hand, but he apparently recovered entirely from this and was in his usual health While in Washington during the last session of Congress he was overworked and almost worn out by the press of political matters, and upon his return home he signified his intention of laying aside all public business this summer and devoting the time to recreation. He spent three weeks at Atlantic City, fishing, bathing and yatching, and came West and went to the Northern lake resorts, and afterward to the Miami reservoir in Ohio, on a fishing expedition. He returned from there two weeks ago, and at that time said that he never felt better in his life. Last week, by special invitation, he attended the fat stock show at Chicago, and was the recipient of considerable attention there, in the way of banquets and receptions, returning home on Saturday, somewhat indisposed. At the reception he attended Tuesday night, however, he appeared to be unusually cheerful and remained much later than was his custom on such occasions.

The news of Mr. Hendricks' death spread rapidly throughout the city, and there was a general expression of sorrow over it. Those who were his political enemies here were his personal friends, and to everybody who called on him, or whom he met, he had a pleasant word and greeting.

There were crowds around the down-town bulletin boards all evening, while in the vicinity of his residence there was another crowd, all anxious to learn the particulars of his sudden demise. The evening papers could not get out extras fast enough to supply the demand

Mr. Hendricks had been dead but a few minutes when forces of men began draping the State, county and city buildings in black, and throughout the night similar emblems were placed on nearly all the prominent business houses and residences, so that by morning the city had put on a general garb of mourning. All the city ministers in their Thanksgiving services to-day, made appropriate mention of the death of the distinguished statesman, and Right Rev. Bishop Knickerbocker, Bishop of the diocese of Indiana, of the Episcopal Church, of which Mr. Hendricks was a life-long member, preached a memorial sermon.

The News at Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 27.—News of the death of Vice-President Hendricks was flashed to Washington almost immediately after the sorrowful discovery was made at Indianapolis, but as the day was an hour farther along here it was nearly on quite seven o'clock before the Washington public learned of the event. The news went like wildfire all over the city at once and was soon known to a few people in every quarter of the National Capital, from one end to the other. A late collection of the letter-boxes is made by the Washington Post-office carriers, and they were just starting out on the rounds at the time the news came, so were the means of carrying the intelligence rapidly to many distant quarters of the city.

Enough people learned of the death to bring quite a gathering of public men to the hotel corridors between nine and ten o'clock, and there was a noticeable appearance of genuine and sincere sorrow in the faces of nearly all. The suddenness of the event, so entirely unexpected, naturally intensified the shock, and most people bore a dazed look, eloquent testimony of the earnestness and depth of their sorrow. It has been a subject of frequent remark that the manifestations of a real and a fervent sorrow have been such as have seldom been witnessed heretofore over the death of any public man. It has been noticed generally and commented on as a significant mark of the wide popularity of Mr. Hendricks, that the public look has been the look a friend would bear in his countenance, not the conventional sign of a mild regret that ordinarily follows bereavements that make their popular impression simply because of the station in the public distinction of the deceased. In the case of Vice-President Hendricks there was indication of a real and substantial popular grief; every little group where the event was discussed and deplored, including those who spoke of him as a friend as well as a distinguished public character, Hendricks was referred to with attestations of love as well as respect. Nothing was so noticeable in the public gatherings as this marked show of the strong personal hold he had upon the people.

SENATOR EDMUNDS

was apprised of the death of the Vice-President by an Associated Press reporter, and was greatly affected. He said that he had known Mr. Hendricks a great many years and they were intimate friends in old times in the Senate, and he added: "I have always had a personal regard for him. I regret exceedingly his death. I shall call a meeting to-morrow of all the Senators in the city, to make such arrangements to have the Senate represented at the funeral as is proper."

SECRETARY BAYARD

said: "The news of Mr. Hendricks' death is painful to us all, but the condition in which the American people are placed by his death through the failure of Congress to pass proper laws regarding the Presidential succession, the fact that there is now but one man's life between the American people and no President, is most painful to contemplate.

Secretary Lamar said: "My acquaintance with Mr. Hendricks was not intimate. He had been for many years a great favorite in the South, and I think he was regarded all over the country as a very conservative statesman; a man of great dignity and force of character. He had the faculty of attaching his friends to him very warmly. Although his death is very sudden and a great shock to us all, I have often heard his friends express apprehension as to the condition of his health ever since his attack some years ago."

SENATOR VOORHEES

said: "There is nothing kind that can be said of Mr. Hendricks that would not be true. He was a man of stainless life and great courage and ability, and a leader of men. To say that he was timid in politics was a great mistake. He never was in a position in his life that he did not fill It His death will cause a great void."

Senator Voorhees and Judge Holman, of Indiana, were informed of the Vice-President's death by telegram from Hon. Wm. H. English. They immediately telegraphed the following to Mrs. Hendricks:

"We tender you the deepest sympathy of our hearts in your great loss The Nation mourns with you"

EXECUTIVE ACTION.

The Cabinet meeting last night was attended by all the members except Secretary Manning and Attorney-General Garland. It was decided that the President and the members of the Cabinet should attend the funeral. When the Cabinet adjourned, the President issued the following:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., November 25, 1885.

To the People of the United States.

Thomas A. Hendricks, Vice President of the United States, died to-day at 5 o'clock at Indianapolis, and it becomes my mournful duty to announce the sad event to his fellow countrymen In respect to the memory and the eminent and varied services of this high official and patriotic public servant, whose career was an honor to his State and to the United States, it is ordered that the National flag be displayed at half-mast upon all the public buildings of the United States, that the Executive Mansion and the several executive departments in the city of Washington be closed on the day of the funeral and be draped in mourning for the period of thirty days, that the usual and appropriate military and naval honors be rendered, and that on all the ships and forts and cruisers of the United States in foreign countries the National flag shall be displayed at half-mast on the receipt of this order and the usual emblems of mourning be adopted for thirty days.

GROVER CLEVELAND,

By the President

T. F. BAYARD, Secretary of State.

The following was sent to the Secretary of the Senate:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., November 25, 1885.

To Hon. Anson G. McCook, Secretary of the Senate.

I am directed by the President to inform you that he has received intelligence of the death of Hon. Thos A. Hendricks, Vice President of the United States, and to convey to you his suggestion that you take immediate steps, in connection with the Clerk of the House of Representatives, to secure a proper representation of Congress at the funeral of the deceased. Very respectfully, your obedient servant,

DANIEL S LAMONT, Private Secretary.

THE PRESIDENT

was just sitting down to dinner when the following dispatch was handed him:

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 25.

To President Cleveland:

Vice-President Hendricks died suddenly this afternoon. Disease probably paralysis

WM. H. ENGLISH

He was greatly shocked at the news it contained and immediately sent the following telegram to Mrs. Hendricks:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., November 25.

Mrs. T. A. Hendricks, Indianapolis, Ind.:

The sudden and lamentable death of your husband excites my profound sympathy for you in this hour of your great bereavement, and I sincerely mourn the decease of one so lately associated with me in the execution of the people's highest trust, while the Nation mourns the loss of an honored citizen and faithful public servant

GROVER CLEVELAND.

Shortly afterward he received the following:

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 25, 1885.

President Cleveland, Washington, D. C.:

DEAR SIR—Mr. Hendricks sent me a message in the afternoon to day, at which time he was slightly unwell only. He died about 4 p. m., no one being present at the actual moment of his death. Dr. Thompson, his physician, thinks paralysis of the heart occasioned his death, which was wholly unexpected

Arrangements For the Funeral.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., November 27.—The committees that were appointed at the public meeting Wednesday night met, with Mr. Hendricks' family yesterday and, finally fixed upon Tuesday next as the day of the funeral. The body will lie in state from Sunday noon until Monday evening in the Court-house in this city. The funeral will occur at noon on Tuesday, and the full Episcopal rites, without the funeral discourse, will be observed. The exercises will take place at St. Paul's Cathedral.

The following have been requested by the family to act as a committee to receive the Federal officers: Senator Ben Harrison, Hon. W. H. English and Judge Niblack, of the Supreme Court. This committee called for a public meeting at four o'clock yesterday evening, when several committees were appointed and full arrangements for the obsequies made. Governor Gray has issued a proclamation calling upon the citizens of the State to observe the day of the funeral as a memorial occasion out of respect for the Nation's dead. The railroads will give reduced rates to this city on Tuesday, and an immense throng from all parts of the State will attend.

The Effect of Vice-President Hendricks' Death in Washington.

WASHINGTON, D. C., November 27.—Thanksgiving Day was very generally observed in Washington. A few of the business houses on Pennsylvania avenue were kept open until midday, after which time the city was as quiet as on Sunday. Religious services were held in all of the larger churches, the different congregations of the same faith, as a rule, uniting. Various pleasure parties were arranged for the day, only to be broken on account of the death of Vice-President Hendricks. At an early hour yesterday morning the work of draping in mourning the Executive Mansion and the several Executive departments and public buildings was begun and pushed forward throughout the entire day. The flags on both houses of Congress floated at half mast, and the newly cleaned marble columns of the House and Senate wings were heavily draped in an artistic manner. Apparently every flag in the city was thrown to the breeze at half mast in honor of the deceased Vice-President, and the picture presented was a mournful one, especially on Pennsylvania avenue. The death of Mr. Hendricks was the sole topic of discussion in all public places, and the criticism upon the last House of Representative for its failure to pass the Presidential succession bill, was in many instances severe.

President Cleveland, accompanied by his sister, attended Dr. Sunderland's Church in the morning, and spent the remainder of the day quietly at the Executive Mansion.

In accordance with the suggestion of the President and the call of the Sergeant-at-Arms, twenty of the twenty-six Senators now in the city answered in the Senate Judiciary Committee room about noon. Senator Edmunds presided. The proceedings were entirely informal. The only action taken was the adoption of a resolution authorizing Senators Edmunds, Sherman, Harris, Allison, Voorhees, Pugh, Cullom, Gibson, Conger, Blair, Dolph, Camden and Vest to act as a committee to attend the funeral. Senator Edmunds and Sergeant-at-arms Canada were authorized to make necessary arrangements for transportation, accommodations, etc. The Senators present informally expressed their grief at the death of the Vice-President, but no addresses were delivered or resolutions adopted.

An informal meeting of the House of Representatives was held in Speaker Carlisle's room, and about twenty members were present, including Messrs. Carlisle, Randall, Morrison, Blount, Cofleman, Ward, Kleiner, Glass, Wilkins and Herbert. The meeting was strictly informal, and no action was taken except to authorize the Sergeant-at-Arms to appoint a committee to attend the funeral. The following names were suggested as proper ones from which to select the committee: Messrs. Carlisle, Randall, Hiscock, Long, Phelps, Hepburn, Brown, Bynum, Morrison, Holman, Herbert, Blount, Barbour, Hewitt and Geddes.

As the Senators were leaving the Capitol, they were questioned as to the probable effect of the Vice-President's death upon the Senate. There was a general disinclination to be quoted on the subject. The general opinion, however, among Senators, members and others appears to be that the most immediate effect of Mr. Hendricks' death will be to secure a quorum of the Senate several days earlier than would have otherwise been the case.

The Presidency of the Senate is conceded to be somewhat in doubt. If Senator Edmunds desires that honor it is undoubtedly within his reach, but on the other hand, if the rumors of his disinclination to serve prove correct, there are many circumstances operating in Senator Logan's favor, and it is understood that the latter has begun an active canvass for the place. The fact that he was the Vice-Presidential candidate, and the further fact that he has lost his committee positions and is unprovided for, increases his chances in this connection. Senators Sherman and Allison are mentioned as possibilities in the event of Senator Edmunds' declination. Senator Logan, in an interview yesterday, expressed his sorrow at the death of his successful competitor. It is too soon, in his opinion, to discuss the probable action of the Senate. Senator Gibson expressed himself as in favor of Mr. Sherman's election to the Presidency of the Senate.

Mr Morrison's only comment was: "Even Vice-President's must sometimes die."

Senator Ransom remarked: "This is very sad, but I know of nothing that can be said."

Both the Pennsylvania and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Companies have extended to the President the use of a special train for himself and party from Washington to Indianapolis on the occasion of the funeral of the late Vice-President. Although it is not yet definitely decided, the indications are that the President will accept the invitation of the Pennsylvania Company.

Considerable pressure has been brought to bear upon Mr. Cleveland to prevent his going to Indianapolis, but Colonel Lamont says the President has decided to go; and that nearly all the members of the Cabinet have determined to accompany him.

Colonel Hughes East, Mr Hendricks' private secretary, received a telegram from Indianapolis last evening announcing that the funeral will take place on Tuesday at 12 m. The interment, he says, will be made in the family lot in Crown Hill Cemetery, in which Mr. Hendricks' only child is interred, and in which an imposing monument stands.

THE DAY OF THANKS.

Synopsis of the Sermon at the Union Thanksgiving Services at the Methodist Church

Business Suspended—The Charity Ball and Public Dinner

Thursday was the fairest and brightest Thanksgiving day ever experienced, and the day was generally observed by suspension of business, the people partaking of big turkey dinners and participating in family reunions

UNION RELIGIOUS SERVICES.

The annual Thanksgiving services were held in the First M E Church yesterday at 10 30 a m, the audience almost filling the large auditorium The service opened with invocation by Rev I I Coultas, of the above named church, after which Rev W H Prestley, of the Presbyterian church, read the proclamation of the President calling upon the people in the various states in the Union in their respective places of worship to give thanks for the prosperity of the year This was succeeded by congregational singing the hymn being read by Rev W H Wilder, P E of Decatur district Rev Geo B. Vosburgh of the Baptist church, offered prayer, when the choir of 33 voices under the direction of Prof Lutz sang an anthem, the solo parts being well rendered by Miss Edwards and Sherman McClelland The scripture reading was the 107th Psalm, by Rev Vosburgh Rev George Stevens, of Stapp's Chapel, read hymn No 1023 which the congregation sang The above was followed by the thanksgiving sermon by Rev M S Newcomer, of the Church of God Following is a synopsis of the able discourse

He based his remarks on the 20th verse of the 147th Psalm He hath not dealt so with any nation Under the domination of the exuberant character of this national holiday we deem it comparatively safe and particularly appropriate that we discuss the political aspects which this nation presents to the gaze of mankind In a sunning this risk of lowering ecclesiastical caste we have not consulted the tutelary oracles of political orthodoxy under whose unselfish guardianship the ominous and reformatory movements of the age have been welcomed with all the cordial warmth of parental solicitude in linked with unqualified ownership It is a fair presence of modern growth the peculiar fruit of political chicanery to suppose that the minister of God has no right to know his country s history no right to study its laws and no right to discuss the merits or demerits of its rulers According to this peculiar edict of the partisan newspaper and its sycophantic tendency the minister of religion has a right to nothing in this country but a brass collar and the undertaker s bill We are not willing that this pious spasm of political mountebanks shall pass unchallenged as the current spirit of enlightened thought It is false impure and misleading It is to be expected that those who have degraded the politics of the country to the disgraceful pinnacle a scuffle for spoils and saloon supremacy should utter the meanly protest against the introduction of purer political methods and higher partisan ethics

God hath not dealth with any nation as He hath with ours planted by His hand nourished by His care protected by His might instructed by His providence we are to day the living embodiment of God in history If we fall through the unholy corruption of our people our overthrow will be signalized by the basest ingratitude which ever cankered about the lonely mausoleum of a dead nation Nestled among the ice bound hills of New England our forefathers with the stern yet sanguine faith of heroic priests founded this mighty nation in prayer To God Israel was their God and the chariots of the pursuing Pharaoh were ground to powder by the mutterings of a consecrated thunderbolt Piety and learning were the swaddling bands of the New World and in the robust manhood of mature years we should not be so ungrateful as to forget the charming lullabies that lulled the pulses of our helpless infancy Here by all these early altars with the fragrant incense of sacred rising up to God the poisonous perfume of despotism were buried The yoke from which made England intolerable tears ferried by English birds to a weaker race Tyranny, cupidity and brutality thrive together, and let us here bear in that this infernal trinity will never promote the happiness of any people

THE SECTIONAL QUESTION

He discussed as follows The temperance reform has culminated in the organization of a political party especially devoted to the prohibition of the liquor traffic Whether this movement is wise or politic does not concern us now We strike the jarring note of truth in a deeper than that The men and women composing this new party are the main intelligent, loyal patriotic industrious moral substantial citizens deeply and conscientiously intent on obliterating the liquor curse from this land They are not anarchists figure heads or nondescripts but now number some of the clearest thinkers the ablest and purest clergymen and most brilliant statesmen in the country They invite the fullest and freest discussion of this exciting question Much as I hate and despise the abominations of the liquor traffic we claim for whisky parties the constitutional right of embodying their sentiments in their ballots and voting them without intimidation, fear or hindrance When you destroy that right you have nothing left worth saving

PRESIDENT CLEVELAND'S ADMINISTRATION was briefly noticed as an American not as a partisan He believed Mr Cleveland fully and honestly committed to the views enforced by the party The professional politician and politic seeker will always and otherwise exploit everything in this world calculated as the practical application would depriciate him of his livelihood and render him dependent upon the spare charities of those who set their books are not responsible by the tortuous revolution of the wheel of fortune Mr Cleveland is to be a guiding centre a fixed star by which the ambitious statesman may shape his course and not weaken his spinal He has taken hold of the work first of all by gently with a firmer grip than any of his predecessors We believe this view of finance to be ruinously wrong that they are wholly inimical impolitic in the interest of Eastern capital and the almighty dollar I stand and abide the future will tell what this administration as a whole will be Lincoln was underpreciated until the assassin's bullet brought a weeping nation to his bier Garfield was never so great as when he lay red weak and helpless in the shadow of death Grant as never known in his symmetrical full until we mast stood until he slept to still the murmuring Hudson to Riverside Park

We have cause for devout thanksgiving but the dread clangor of war is not within our border peace the white winged angel of God spreads her starry pinions over our hearts at our altars and our children Our wonderful mineral wealth mines the water courses our immense system of railways our roaring loud the ocean our civil rights our unfettered press our free pulpits our royalty of labor These with other blessings too numerous to mention compose a glittering necklace of gems which the hand of God has flung about the neck of our Goddess of Liberty to dazzle the jealous eyes of kings and dim the flashing sceptre of haughty tyrants

At the close of the sermon, Rev L Field, P E of the U B church, offered prayer The choir rendered their second anthem, at the conclusion of which the annual collection for the poor of our city was taken, the sum was $74 50, left to the disposition of the pastors at their next meeting Rev W H Prestley pronounced the benediction, thus concluding the thanksgiving services of another year

Y M C A SPORTS

The hare and hound chase was quite a success yesterday afternoon About 20 young men met and prepared for the chase John Brett and Ed West were chosen hares and each equipped with a knapsack of finely cut paper and a tin horn started from the rooms and were to begin dropping the paper, the scent or trail to be followed by the hounds, at west end of William street The other boys were held eight minutes, when the signal was given and the boys started out on the chase and turned west on Prairie near the postoffice just in time to see the hares leave the west end of Prairie on the trot. The chase was a hot one and lasted two and one-half hours, the boys running eight miles or more during that time. The number of pursuers was about 15 at the start, but before they had measured the first two miles the number had decreased to 7, all of whom stood the chase through to the end. Before three miles were traveled one of the hares, Mr. West, was captured, but the other, Johnny Brett, was not even gotten a glimpse of until they found him eating apples in the rooms upon the return from the chase.

THE DINNER.

The Christian church ladies served another of their splendid public dinners at the tabernacle, closing with a festival at night The gross receipts were $180.

A BRILLIANT PARTY

The annual charity ball given at Guards' Armory last night by members of the Relief Committee was a brilliant social event and one of the most successful parties financially of any given in past years There were about 75 couples in the merry company, the ladies looking their loveliest in elaborate party costumes a full description of which cannot be given to-day owing to limited space The programme provided 16 dances, for which the Opera orchestra provided the music, with L W Fribourg as prompter. During the evening under the direction of Mrs Guyton the party was provided with fine refreshments served upon tables placed along the south side of the hall The Relief Committee will have quite a neat little sum to use this winter in providing food, clothing and medicine for the deserving poor in our midst The officers of committee are Mrs. L Burrows, president, Mrs W. B Chambers, vice president, Mrs H C Johns, secretary, Mrs W M Boyd, treasurer Directors—Mesdames C P Thatcher, C L Griswold, W J Quinlan, J K Warren, J. H Vennigerholz and D C Shockley The reception committee last night were Mrs H C. Johns, Mrs Vennigerholz, Mrs Abbott, Mrs Waterhouse, Mrs. J. W. Race, Mrs Curtis, and Mrs. Albert Barnes Floor managers—Mayor Kanan, W B Chambers, B K Durfee, F L Hays, D A Mafft, W R. Abbott, J. W. Clugston, Peter Brueck O E. Curtis, and S W Johns

Alleged Swindler

E G Emmett, claiming to be a representative of the D. Appleton & Co, publishers, Chicago, was at the St. Nicholas hotel last week He succeeded in victimizing Mr Laux to the amount of about $15 by alleged false pretenses Emmett was arrested at Springfield yesterday, and to day Marshal Mason went to the capital to bring the hotel beat to this city. An example will be made of Emmett It is an easy matter for a smooth talking traveling man to victimize a hotel keeper Mr Laux befriended Emmett and his confidence in the man's integrity was misplaced Such fellows ought to receive the full penalty of the law.

SERIOUS CUTTING AFFRAY.

Disgraceful Fight at Warrensburg on Thanksgiving Day

There was a bloody cutting affray at Warrensburg on Thursday, which came near terminating in a double murder. A short time ago there was a disturbance at the home of Elsa Barkam, near Warrensburg, where a dance was in progress, caused it is said by Frank and Walter Major, sons of E W Major, who live south of the village two miles. The Hoagland boys—William, Eugene and Thomas—showed spunk at the dance and caused the Majors to go away. The parties met in Warrensburg yesterday. The Majors and a hired man had brought a load of hogs to the village and sold them. They got into a controversy with the Hoaglands, and a fight resulted in the wagon The team ran away but was caught and brought back, when a general fight ensued Thomas Hoagland was disabled by a brick thrown by one of the Major boys The hired man took a hand in the fight, when Eugene endeavored to keep him away Then both the Majors went for William Hoagland, when the latter pulled out his knife and defended himself by giving the Major boys serious wounds. Walter was cut once in the neck, four times in the shoulder, and given a deep wound in the leg. Frank was cut in the left side and received four other smaller wounds. Robert Koontz came to the rescue and parted the men, and thus probably prevented a murder. Walter Major was able to walk, but Frank lost so much blood that he had to be carried to Dr Catto's office The wounds were dressed and both young men sent to their homes Great excitement prevailed The Hoaglands were fined by Justice Tubbs $3 and costs each for fighting The father of the Major boys came to the village and had a state warrant issued for the Hoaglands on a charge of assault to murder. They had their trial before Tubbs Thomas and Eugene were discharged, Samuel Ritchie appearing for the defendants, and Mr Eichnor for the People It was the order of the court that William Hoagland be held without bail to await the results of the Major boys' wounds The examination will be had at Warrensburg on December 5th Deputy Sheriff Mauzy brought Hoagland to Decatur last night and put him in jail The Major boys may recover Frank was in a critical condition to day

GRANDMOTHER

Used herbs in doctoring the family, and her simple remedies DID CURE in most cases. Without the use of herbs, medical science would be powerless; and yet the tendency of the times is to neglect the best of all remedies for those powerful medicines that seriously injure the system.

MISHLER'S HERB BITTERS.

is a combination of valuable herbs, carefully compounded from the formula of a regular Physician, who used this prescription largely in his private practice with great success. It is not a drink, but a medicine used by many physicians. ☞ It is invaluable for DYSPEPSIA, KIDNEY and LIVER COMPLAINTS, NERVOUS EXHAUSTION, WEAKNESS, INDIGESTION, &c.; and while curing will not hurt the system.

Mr. C. J. Rhodes, a well-known iron man of Safe Harbor, Pa., writes:
"My son was completely prostrated by fever and nerve. Quinine and barks did him no good. Then sent for Mishler's Herb Bitters and in a short time the boy was quite well."

"E. A. Schellentrager, Druggist, 717 St. Clair Street, Cleveland, O., writes:

RUSSIAN CENSORSHIP.

How the Czar Provides That Nothing Offensive Be Published.

The censorship for all publications is composed of two courts—the Censure Committee and the Press Department. In addition to these two there existed at this period a third division for "press censure" organized by the notorious Third Section, where the chief of the gendarmerie reigned supreme. At present this Third Section has been transformed into a department of the State police, and consequently the whole censorship is confined to the Ministry of the Interior. There exists besides these an ecclesiastical censorship for all works touching upon religion, and one of the Ministry of Public Instruction, that deals with all books or periodicals intended for young persons. Every publication, whether book or periodical, must undergo either "preliminary" or "subsequent" censorship. Those subjected to "preliminary" censorship are dealt with in manuscript, and the printed text must in no wise differ from this corrected manuscript, often cut down wholesale and utterly spoiled by the censor. With regard to publications exempted from this censorship, once printed they are presented to the Censure Committee, but the permission to set them in circulation is only granted after the expiration of seven days for books and of four days for periodicals, provided that during this period the censor has not entered any objection. This formality complied with, the book review passes on to a member of the Press Department, who exercises superior control. If all the censors think the publication of a book or periodical is damaging or disagreeable to the Government, the printed copies are sequestered or, according to circumstances, other steps taken. In addition to the administrative measures, the censorship, through the medium of the procureur, can summon author or editor before the tribunal and the administration (the "head police") and can expel them from the capital or have them deported in order to place these "disturbers of the peace" under surveillance of the police. It frequently happens that an author acquitted by the tribunal is deported by virtue of an order from the chief of the gendarmerie. I could cite numbers of cases showing the relations between the administration and the men of letters. But I believe that one little adventure that took place at St. Petersburg will suffice as evidence what law and justice are in Russia when the press is concerned. One M. Koukol Jasnopolsky was the proprietor of a printing office. One fine morning he received a visit from General Tchebikine, commissioned to examine all printing stocks in the capital. With the account books before him, and not in the least knowing how to set about discovering if the weight of the type corresponded with that in the books, he ordered all the different kinds of type to be mixed up together and weighed. The weight was exactly that stated. But the type broken in the process was useless and the proprietor of the office put to a considerable loss. The Civil Tribunal condemned the over-energetic General to pay several thousand rubles damages. Here the affair seemed at an end, but the administration, feeling outraged by the verdict of the tribunal—which, by the way, was never put into effect—gave an order to have M. Koukol Jasnopolsky deported to Malarieff, a little town in the Province of Nijni Novgorod. There he remained several years under police surveillance.—Isidor Goldsmith, in Nineteenth Century.

THE VOICE.

What It Tells and What It May Be Considered to Indicate.

Nothing betrays so much as the voice, save perhaps the eyes, but they can be lowered, and so far the expression hidden.

In moments of emotion no skill can hide the fact of disturbed feeling, though a strong will and habit of self-control can steady the voice when else it would be failing and tremulous.

Certain voices grate on the nerves and set our teeth on edge, and others are just as calming as they are irritating, quieting, or like a composing draught.

A good voice, calm in tone and musical in quality, is one of the essentials for a physician—the "bedside voice," which is nothing if it is not sympathetic by constitution.

Whatever its original quality may be, the orator's voice bears the unmistakable stamp of art and becomes artificiality; as such it may be admirable—telling in a crowd, impressive in address, but overwhelming and chilling at home, partly because it is always conscious and never self-forgetting.

An orator's voice, with its careful intonation and accurate accent, would be as much out of place beside a sick-bed as a brocaded silk for the kitchen-girl.

The voice is much more indicative of the state of the mind than many people know or allow.

One of the first symptoms of failing brain power is in indistinct or confused utterance, no idiot has a clear or melodious voice; the harsh scream of mania is proverbial, and no person of prompt and decisive thought was ever known to hesitate and stutter.

A thick, loose, fluffy voice does not belong to the crisp character of mind which does the most active work, and when a keen-witted man drawls and lets his words drip instead of bringing them out in the sharp, incisive way that ought to be natural to him there is a flaw somewhere.—Exchange.

—Two Kansas City young ladies were lately made acquainted with grief through the instrumentality of castor beans. Two gentlemen wagered that they could eat more of them than the ladies, and swallowed two or three; the girls ate a dozen or more each. It was rather dangerous business. The symptoms of poisoning were painfully severe and lasted several hours, leaving the patients greatly prostrated. Ricinine, the toxic principle of the bean, is an acrid poison. A number of writers report deaths from eating castor beans.—Chicago Times.

German Expulsion of Poles.

Public attention here continues to be attracted to the steady expulsion of Poles from the Prussian districts adjacent to the Russian frontier. One authority, claiming to be well-informed, calculates that no fewer than 20,000 persons, including 5,000 Jews, have already thus been sent about their business out of the eastern provinces of Prussia back into the Russian or the Austrian provinces which they left. Thus, in the arrondissement of Inowraclaw alone, as many as 700 non-Prussian subjects, chiefly Poles, have lately received peremptory notice to quit within a stated time; while in Posen, according to accounts from that town itself, 130 persons were summoned before the police a day or two ago to receive similar orders. Other localities have the like tale to tell.—Berlin Cor. London Times.

—Nine generations of William Fowlers have successively run a grist mill at Milford, Conn., on the same site selected by senior William Fowler on arriving from England two hundred and fifty years ago. The present building is the second in the succession.—New Haven Register.

PROFESSOR HERKIMER says he does not think an English university the place for a practical education of any sort.

"Wait Till the Clouds Roll By, Love"

But the clouds won't "roll by" as long as dyspepsia holds its cruel grip. Dyspepsia beclouds the mind, confuses the understanding and darkens the domestic circle. Brown's Iron Bitters makes short work of dyspepsia. Mrs. H. L. Taylor, Lynchburg, S. C, says, "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia, with favor ble results. I believe it is all it is represented to be." Ask any druggist what is the experience of his patrons who have used this great tonic.

A FEMALE member of the Salvation Army at Kennebec, Me., was expelled a short time ago because she persisted in wearing feathers on her hat. She now wears more feathers than ever.

A CURIOUS case is reported from Hastings, O. Mr. Charles Maybury was a confirmed invalid, bed-ridden by a long standing attack of neuralgic rheumatism. Several physicians who had been attending him frankly declared their inability to aid him. A neighbor who visited the sick man one day took with him a bottle of Mishler's Herb Bitters. The invalid was persuaded to take a few doses. A change for the better was soon apparent, and in less than three weeks' time Mr. Maybury was able to walk without cane or crutches.

CARL SCHURZ will deliver the oration at the first incineration service of the Mount Olivet Crematory in New York.

HAVE used Tongaline in neuralgia of long standing. After taking Tongaline, my patient has enjoyed perfect freedom from her complaint. Am led to believe that in some forms of neuralgia Tongaline is as nearly a specific as is quinine in intermittent fevers.

An Efficient Remedy

In all cases of Bronchial and Pulmonary Affections is AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. As such it is recognized and prescribed by the medical profession, and in many thousands of families, for the past forty years, it has been regarded as an invaluable household remedy. It is a preparation that only requires to be taken in very small quantities, and a few doses of it administered in the early stages of a cold or cough will effect a speedy cure, and may, very possibly, save life. There is no doubt whatever that

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral

Has preserved the lives of great numbers of persons, by arresting the development of Laryngitis, Bronchitis, Pneumonia, and Pulmonary Consumption, and by the cure of those dangerous maladies. It should be kept ready for use in every family where there are children, as it is a medicine far superior to all others in the treatment of Croup, the alleviation of Whooping Cough, and the cure of Colds and Influenza, ailments peculiarly incidental to childhood and youth. Promptitude in dealing with all diseases of this class is of the utmost importance. The loss of a single day may, in many cases, entail fatal consequences. Do not waste precious time in experimenting with medicines of doubtful efficacy, while the malady is constantly gaining a deeper hold, but take at once the speediest and most certain to cure,

Ayer's Cherry Pectoral,

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.
